INTERVAL HOUSE TEMPORARILY RELOCATES EMERGENCY SHELTER DURING GRANT-FUNDED RENOVATIONS PROJECT

HARTFORD – Interval House, Connecticut’s largest domestic violence organization, has temporarily moved its confidentially located crisis shelter to complete a state-funded renovations project.

All services and programs will continue uninterrupted, said Interim Executive Director Catherine Bradshaw. The $286,000 two-month long renovations project, funded by the state’s Nonprofit Grant Program, was long overdue and will provide much-needed upgrades, she said.

“All of our clients have been moved to a safe and temporary facility and we will continue to provide all of our services during this project,” Bradshaw said. “That includes sheltering victims of domestic violence and their children.”

Since 1977, Interval House has served victims of domestic violence -- mostly women and children -- who are psychologically or physically battered by their partner. The nonprofit organization is dedicated to providing services to prevent and break the cycle of family and intimate partner violence. Since it was founded, Interval House has provided services to more than 225,000 people.

Each year, the agency handles more than 12,000 hotline phone calls, provides services to more than 8,000 people and houses approximately 300 women and children in its 20-bed shelter.

For help with abuse call Interval House’s hotline at: 860-527-0550 or the Statewide Hotline: 1-888-774-2900. More information can also be found online at: intervalhousect.org.
