Friends,

Since 1977, Interval House has been the place that victims of domestic violence turn when they have nowhere else to go. For nearly 50 years, our advocates and network of friends have ensured that survivors receive the support and resources they need to rebuild their lives.

People often think of us as a safe house or shelter. But Interval House is so much more. We provide a lifeline to those in crisis through safety planning and counseling. In the courts, we give clients a guiding light as they face the rocky shoals of the judicial system. Our partnerships with law enforcement literally save lives by identifying individuals at high risk and connecting them with us immediately. When families stay with us, they build the tools they will need to get to a life that is free of abuse. And now more than ever before, our work with youth in the community is breaking the cycle of abuse for future generations.

October is Domestic Violence Awareness Month, and we are reaching out to you now to ask you to be our partner in this work. Your involvement can change the lives of more people than you think. By joining our cause, you show your clients, customers, colleagues, and your community that you believe in the power of intervention and prevention...that you care about your neighbors and want them to thrive.

With your help, we can spread the word that Interval House is not just a house...it is a lifeline, a guiding light, and a path to a future free from fear.

Please join us,

Mary-Jane Foster
